

We work to educate the public and other agencies about the signs of adult abuse, including physical injury, sexual abuse, poor nutrition, dehydration, untreated medical conditions, misuse of medicines, abandonment or general neglect.

The County of Ventura Human Services Agency provides public services that promote self sufficiency and health and well-being. Our services help ensure the protection of children, the elderly and dependent adults, and provide a safety net for individuals and families who need assistance with basic necessities, such as food, housing and health care. Additionally, we help people secure employment through education, training, job search skills, and job placement.

To report suspected elder or dependent adult abuse or neglect, contact the Child & Elder Abuse 24-Hour Hotline at (805) 654-3200.

Adult Protective Services

Safety and well-being for elderly and dependent adults

COUNTY OF VENTURA

Providing Support

Each year, more than 2,000 elderly and dependent adults are provided support so that they can live in a comfortable and caring environment, free from abuse, neglect and financial mistreatment.

Achieving independence

The Human Services Agency is here to help

The Human Services Agency facilitates the state-mandated Adult Protective Services program to ensure that people with limited abilities are able to protect themselves from outside interests, including abusive friends, relatives and caregivers. Our bilingual staff provides services at no cost to clients, including investigating allegations of abuse and neglect, assessing client needs, providing short-term case management and providing linkage to services. Our clients have the right to refuse assistance.

Our goal is to provide a pathway to the client's current and future safety, enlist the support of families and other support services, educate the community regarding the identification and prevention of abuse, and advocate for elderly and dependent adults through government legislation.

Ensuring safety

Connecting those at risk with assistance

When we receive a referral from someone who suspects adult abuse or neglect, we complete an assessment to determine whether or not there is a protective issue involved. When a protective issue is identified, the social worker visits the client to discuss the issue at hand, as well as recommend other services that may be helpful. Once the client agrees to receive assistance, we link with Aging Network partners, including:

- Area Agency on Aging
- District Attorney's Office
- County of Ventura Public Health Department
- County of Ventura Behavioral Health Department
- Public Guardian
- Tri-Counties Regional Center
- Other Human Services Agency programs
- Various hospitals and other private providers
- Community-based organizations

Our goal is to provide a pathway to the client's current and future safety, enlist the support of families, educate the community, and advocate for elderly and dependent adults through government legislation.

With the client's consent, we work to stabilize their situation and ensure protection through information, linkage to resources, short-term case management, counseling and, when needed, emergency shelter.

Knowledge is power

Knowing the signs of adult abuse

The signs of abuse can be difficult to ascertain. Adult abuse can continue unseen for years or be a sudden attack from a trusted friend, family member or caregiver. Sometimes a client needs help because of self-neglect due to a decline in cognitive capacity.

We work to educate the public and other agencies about the signs of adult abuse:

Neglect by Self or Others: inadequate food, malnourishment, dehydration, untreated medical conditions, misuse of medication, and unsafe housing

Financial Indicators: misuse of funds, unusual activity in bank account, checks cashed by others, suspicious changes in ownership, unpaid bills, missing belongings, lottery scams, and telemarketers

Mental Suffering: fear, agitation, confusion, severe depression, or other forms of serious emotional distress that is brought about by threats, harassment, or other forms of intimidating behavior

Physical Injuries: cuts, bruises, burns, unexplained injuries, physical restraints, evidence of sexual abuse, and deprivation of food and water

Untreated Medical Conditions: lingering illnesses, ignored injuries, or general decline in health

Isolation: prevention of receipt of mail, phone calls, visitors, or contact with other concerned persons

Abandonment: being left alone and unable to provide the basic necessities of daily living

Emotional and financial abuse may offer fewer visual clues, so these forms of abuse often are more difficult to identify. Emotional abuse may be carried out through denial of phone calls, visitors or mail, and threats that cause fear, anxiety or depression. Financial abuse often involves misused funds, unauthorized account changes and real estate transactions, or missing belongings.

Advocates for our community

Requirements for mandated reporting

To ensure that all of our community members are safe, everyone must be responsible for reporting suspected abuse. Additionally, anyone who has full- or part-time custody or care of an elderly or dependent adult is required to serve as a mandated reporter and immediately report suspected abuse or neglect. Other professionals required to report abuse include social workers, members of the clergy, health care practitioners, financial institutions, advocacy groups, and fire department personnel.
